

10 Burgh Quay, Dublin 2

call: 086 3963845

email: commonplaceprojects@gmail.com

web: www.commonplace.ie

An exhibition of new work by Emma Haugh

Exhibition launch, from 6.30pm Friday 15th April 2011

This exhibition be will open to the public on four Saturdays (or by appointment):

Saturday 16th April 2pm - 7pm

Saturday 23rd April 2pm - 7pm

Saturday 30th April 2pm - 7pm

Saturday 7th May 2pm - 7pm

15.Jul.2009 - 18:52 hrs

Berghain is not a gay club, but a club with a lot of gays. Despite being straight this also makes the atmosphere better I think. Everything is possible and I love the freedom. You never have the feeling that anyone is watching you, like bouncers but of course you should respect very few rules. I also dunno get why you were kicked out like that since I never saw this before. People who took pictures was told not to do this and probably hand in the camera to get it later back. There is even a documentary "Feiern" were they filmed for a short time and you can hear the black bouncer just in a very reasonable way asking not to do this. What I can recall is that he says that for him it is harmless but visitors are complaining and don't want this. And for the person that said that you are allowed to take pictures in Tresor, I remember in the old location that I also had to hand in my camera, just for the privacy of the regular guests, who make these clubs what they are.

teddy

16.Jul.2009 - 00:33 hrs

actually berghain is a gay club, with a lot of straight people in it. ask anyone who works there next time you're in.

and you'd have to be blind/stupid/willfully ignoring the signs if you missed all the "NO CAMERAS" signs when you go in.

TobyG.

16.Jul.2009 - 13:53 hrs

cmon! a club can't be gay or straight! and the crowd in berghain is mixed, so it isn't a gay club - at least not a gay only club.

jonc

16.Jul.2009 - 14:36 hrs

I thought I saw Brueno last time I was there.

cb6dba

16.Jul.2009 - 15:00 hrs

I lived in Berlin for 4 and a half years and I have not even heard of this place before...